

NIKE
1982

WHEATON COLLEGE

Norton, Massachusetts

The staff of this year's Nike chose as the theme, "Ordinary People Doing Extraordinary Things." Following the decision to present this theme in a very subtle and inconspicuous way, it soon was clear that all of the work had been done. With every picture we put in this book, the theme is revealed. Everyone at Wheaton is basically an average, ordinary person; and yet, each member of the Wheaton Community is extraordinary. Each individual has accomplished something extraordinary, realized or not, during or before his/her time at Wheaton.

The Metcalf Pillars were chosen to represent this theme for a specific reason; although they appear to be ordinary pillars, what they stand for is actually extraordinary. They symbolize a link between old and new, upper and lower, campuses. They are a part of Wheaton's history. They are carrying this history into the present and future. Whether one admires them for their aesthetic beauty or their historical significance is not as important as the fact they they are admired and appreciated by many.

DEDICATION

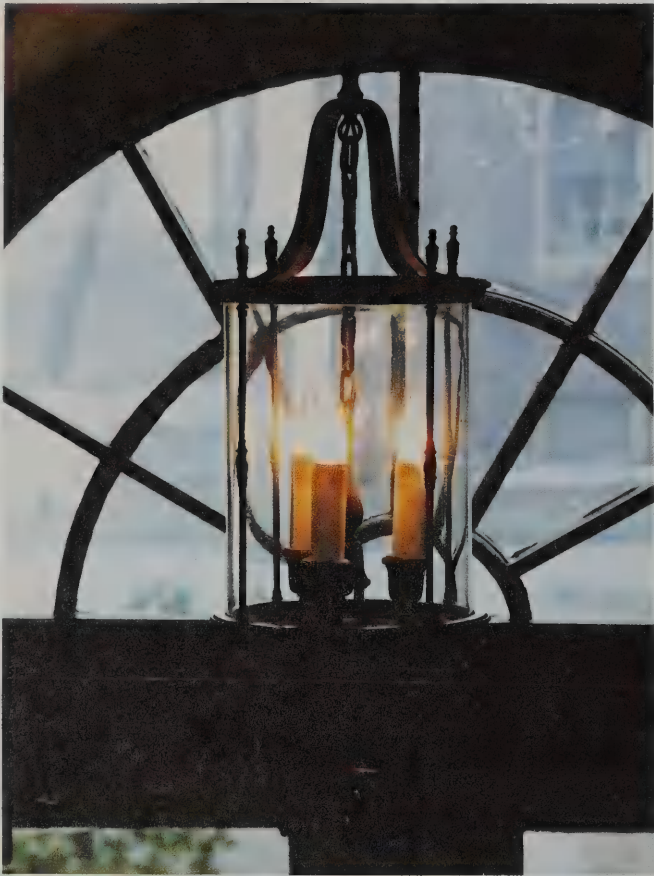

The decision concerning the dedication of the book was left up to the Senior Class this year. Whether open to the entire campus or restricted to an individual, or group, the selection would most likely have produced the same results. In choosing Vincent Cuccaro, professor of Italian, the members of the Senior Class were, in a sense, carrying on a new tradition—a tradition of support and a show of care and gratitude.

The dedication of a book is a permanent statement. Each time the book is opened, or remembered, recollections of the person to whom the dedication is given, are stirred up; these memories, therefore, become permanent. This may not be necessary in this instance—Professor Cuccaro will be remembered, and what he has done at Wheaton will remain permanent without the assistance of a book.

We hope that others on campus share in our expressed dedication to Professor Cuccaro. We dedicate this book to his dedication and devotion to the Wheaton Community.

"If our department did its job well, we didn't get jobs or money for our students — we gave them pleasure for their minds, for the rest of their lives."

"Nineteen members of the class of '82 completed a full semester of student teaching this year. For some, this has represented rehearsal of a professional role they will pursue for years; for others, this has meant an opportunity to plan, direct and lead a large group all day, every day, for 13 weeks."

"Success is a hard word to define; it means different things to different people. We hope we have added to students' insights into social and cultural behavior; that by taking Sociology and Anthropology they are more alert to issues in societies and more aware of fictions that pass for truth; and that these perspectives will guide them to more effective lives and living."

"The English Department has sought to contribute to the enrichment of the lives of the members of the senior class by endeavoring to help them to think more clearly, write more effectively, read more understandingly, appreciate literary art more deeply, and know more broadly their literary heritage, both old and new."

"History has taught students how to think. It has taught members of the class of 1982 how to search for information, how to select the relevant, how to analyze, and how to communicate. These attributes are valuable in both professional and personal life."

Drama

"The Drama Department has made 'girls' realize they could handle a hammer, carry a platform, wire a pin-connector, or use a table saw lovingly nick-named 'Jaws'."

Art

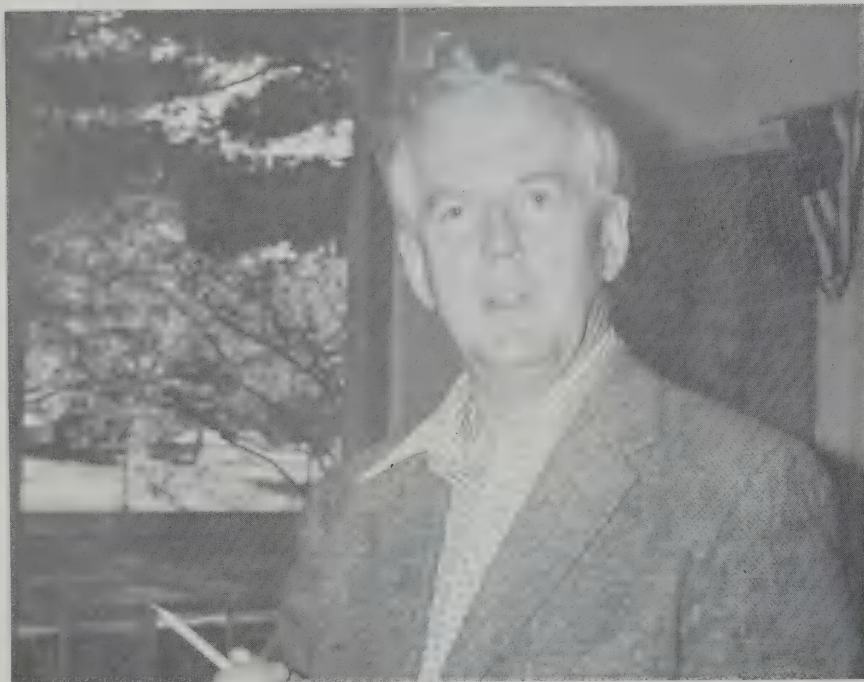

It has taught them a sense of community, responsibility, and endless dedication. It has shown them this is a highly competitive world where the talented and strong survive. Many have experienced defeat, but most have developed humility. They have learned that theatre, like life, is a political game as well. They have portrayed mothers, daughters, sisters, strippers, drunks, and career women. They have been the senile, the brilliant, the strong, the pathetic, the insane, the young and old. Theirs has been two worlds: one of introspection and creativity, the other of real problems and jobs to be done."

"We have made an attempt to sensitize our students visually and to help them solve problems creatively, with critical judgement."

SENIOR "HELL" NIGHT

Thursday, May 13th

A NEW TRADITION

The Class of 1982 is presenting a gift to the Wheaton Community:

A Class Flag

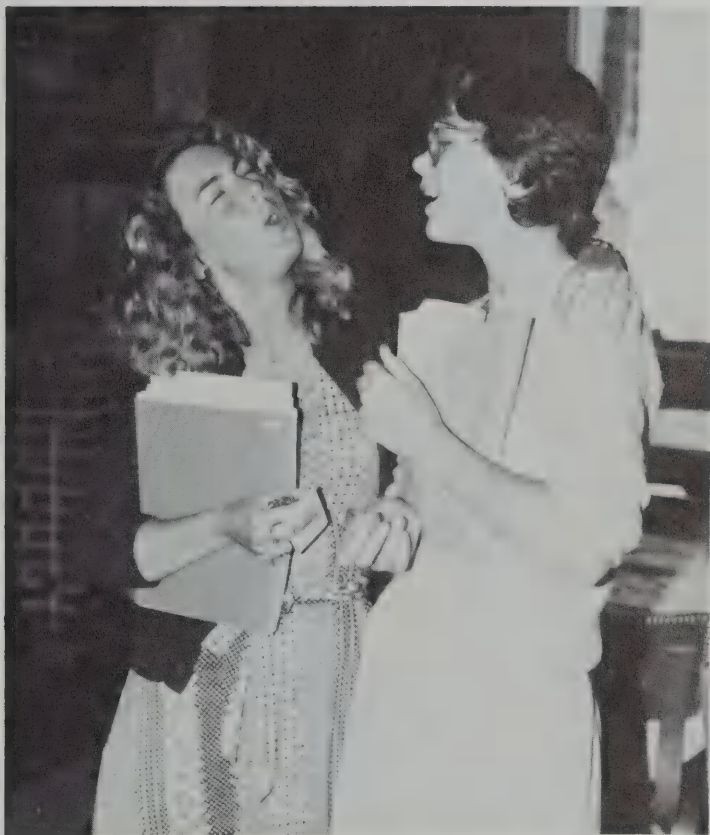

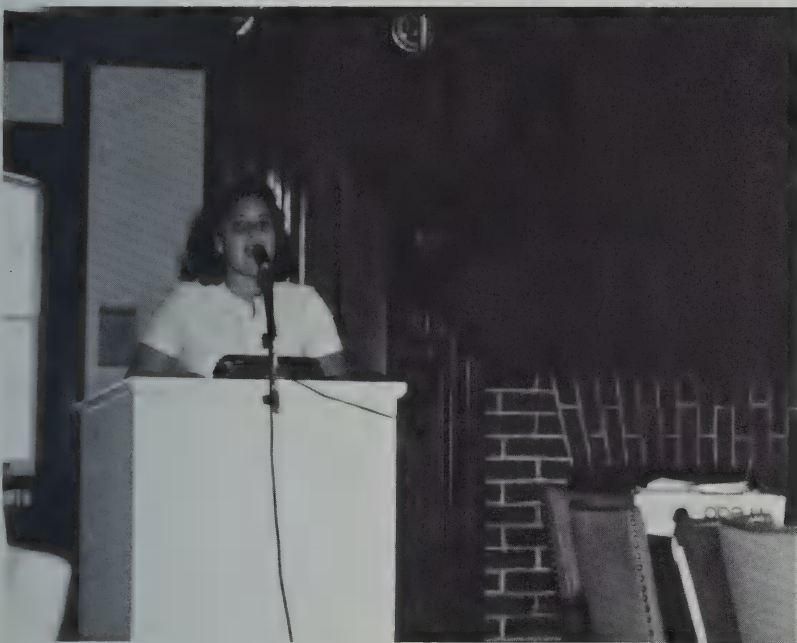

This flag contains the four class colors and will resemble the sketch above. It is the intention of the tradition that this flag be presented to the Junior class from the Senior class each year at a Senior-Junior Banquet, held immediately prior to the last week of classes. The entire Wheaton community is invited to the formal raising of the flag on Friday, May 14th at high noon. The procession will commence at 11:55 am from Emerson Dining Hall to the flagpole, where the Vice-President of the Class of '82 will hoist the flag and the incoming Vice-President of the Class of '83. The flag will represent the continuous efforts toward establishing unity between classes. This flag will also be representative of the cycle of learning and growing that each Wheaton student experiences. The presentation of the flag from the Senior class to the Junior class will symbolize a new beginning for the graduating Seniors as well as the future classes of Wheaton.

This yearbook shows the extraordinary achievement of this year's Nike staff. The staff consisted of just ordinary people who managed to create a book of extraordinary things. Through art, layout, copy, photography, and various other tasks, the staff was able to create a book full of memories. We, the editorial staff, would like to express our thanks to those persons who were dedicated to the production of yet another Nike. The hard work that was done on this yearbook is in itself extraordinary. Thank-you!
